Notice to Correspondents.

We reserve the right to strike from any communication whatever we may think proper. Persons need not be offended if we do not publish just what they write in the manner written. It frequently happens that for want of space and time, some portion of a letter is left out; and again, for other reasons, we may think it better to cut, and not destroy. Some may be received too late for the purposes for which they are intended, and others may not be what we want. So our friends need not think we treat them unkindly in anything we do about the matter.

We select correspondence and all items of news which, if published or not is intended to offend no one. Write plainly and only on one side of the paper. WEDNESDAY, JUNE 13, 1877.

Rain! rain! rain!!!

Go to Houston & Dillman's for candies, cakes, nuts, &c.

Don't fail to attend the barbeque at Hines' Mill, on Saturday, 23rd of June.

Wm. H. Owen, of Owensboro, Ky., is spending a few days in town.

Call on V. P. Addington and buy you a new hat—just received.

Houston & Dillman keep the best five cent cigars in town.

One car load of salt for sale at E. T. Williams' at $1.70 per lb.

Heavy rains fell in this vicinity last Thursday night and Friday morning.

Time is money—and get it from V. P. Addington—not the money, but a Seth Thomas clock.

Mrs. Sam. K. Cox arrived at home Monday from a visit to her parents in Owensboro.

The editor of this paper is off for the Press Convention, which meets in Frankfort this week.

Miss Mollie Brotherton, one of Owensboro's fair belles, is visiting Miss Dent Phillips, near this place.

Strawberries, ice cream and soda water, are the three principal luxuries of this place just now.

Rev. James Barnett, of the Cumberland Presbyterian church, preached at the Methodist church, Sunday and Sunday night.

Mrs. J. F. Yager, of this city, left last Wednesday morning for Henderson, Ky., where she will remain several days visiting kindred.

Miss Cordie Warren, of Rockport, Ky., who has been spending the past week here, visiting Mrs. F. E. Kimbley, returned home Monday.

The show has come and gone, and the daily employment of the small boy is to find a soft spot on which to turn sun-merinals and stand on his heels.

Miss Lizzie Walker returned from Lyndland Institute, Hardin county, last Saturday, where she had been for the last ten months, attending school.

Miss Maggie Moseley, who has been attending Bethelham College, Hardin county, for the past five months, returned to her home in this place last Friday.

All those wishing a day of recreation and fun, should not fail to attend the occasion at Hines' Mill, on Saturday, June 23rd, 1877.

Wm. A. Loyd, Esq., of Ellis' precinct, this county, was in town Thursday and Friday, and called up to see us. We think there are attractions in Hartford for Willie.

For a sauce of good ice cream or sherbet, go to Houston & Dillman's.

E. T. Williams keeps a large stock of Bacon and Lard which he will sell low for cash.

The funeral of Mrs. Sallie Spangler will be preached at Liberty church on the fourth Sunday in this month (June) by Rev. G. J. Bean.

The funeral of Rev. Wm. Kirk will be preached at Berea Valley Church on the third Sunday in July, by Rev. H. D. Bennett and Rev. G. J. Bean.

Go to Beaver Dam and have your picture taken. J. F. Hardman will be there 20th of June, with his Mammoth Picture Car, and will remain 12 days. He makes 5 pictures for 50 cts or 12 for $1.00.

Messrs. Bean & Yaght have secured the services of Burch Dickerson, one of the best horse shoers in the State. Persons wanting anything done in this line would do well to give them a call.

Go to F. B. Wise at the Hartford steam mill for flour, meal or bran at fair prices. Take your grain there to be ground, your wool there to be carded, and our word for it, you will live longer and die happier.

People will go where they can buy cheap, and in consequence thereof, E. Small, of the Trade Palace, has made a general reduction on all his stock, and cannot be underbids by any merchant in the Green River country.

Older A. Co. had a good show, but the best show to get your money back is to patronize the Hartford steam grist mill and carding machine. They make the very best flour and meal, and do as good carding as can be done anywhere.

Our young and esteemed friend, Cyrus Gates, representing the popular hat house of Hensle & Bretfelder, Louisville, Ky., spent a day or two in this place last week. Cyrus is a clever whole-saled gentleman, a wide-awake business man, a popular salesman, and represents a first-class house.

D. H. French, a prominent lawyer of Lexington, but formerly of this place, passed a few days with friends and relatives here, last week. He was accompanied on his return by Miss Sallie Taylor, of this city, who will remain several weeks in Lagrange visiting relatives and acquaintances.

High water does not trouble us. We grind and card on in the even tenor of our way, and guarantee satisfaction to our customers, and accommodate them as soon as possible at the Hartford steam grist mill and carding machine.

A. K. Pirle, of Bell's Store District, has a Poland China bear, one year old, half black, that is six feet, seven and one half inches from the end of his nose to the root of his tail, and is four feet, eight inches around the body, and two feet, eight inches high. Good about, that.

Prof. C. J. Norwood, of Lexington, assistant State Geologist, is in town, the guest of the Hartford House. The Prof. is a pleasant gentleman, and makes a favorable impression upon all who meet him. He honored us with a call last Friday morning.

Died, in McLean county, Kentucky, May 25th, 1877, Mr. John H. Ryan. He was an industrious, moral, religious young man, having made a profession of religion in this county some time last year, and joined the Methodist church. He had many friends and acquaintances in this county, many of whom may not yet know of his early demise.

It was at the circus Saturday night, and when she entered the circus she was carrying her crinoline at least one notch above her boots. She wore striped ones, at the sight of which the clown exclaimed: "Right here, boys; the Zebra has escaped; come cage her!" We noticed her "wit," evidently embarrassed, and then she made a lunge for a top seat.

A new enterprise, in the way of a first class confectionery and ice-cream saloon, has just been opened in Geo. Platt's old stand, under the supervision of Dillman & Houston. They are both thorough gentlemen, of pleasing and refined address, combined with business qualities of a rare order, they will make the ladies' department pleasant and attractive, and hope to merit their patronage. No rougher or rowdies will be permitted to lounge about there, and the most refined lady will have a fear of having her modesty shocked by giving them a call.

"Kill the fatted calf," and don't forget that savory mutton and plump spring chickens would add to the attractions of the occasion. We have reference to the grand Fourth of July celebration by the Sunday schools of the county, in the beautiful grove below the residence of Mr. Gibson, in the lower end of town. All are cordially invited and earnestly expected, and the renewal of patriotic sentiments on the anniversary of American liberty will be one of the pleasing features of the day, and love of country be incalculable, and so strongly engrained into the minds of the young, that a love of country and independence may be paramount only to that adoration due to God.

We deem it due our friends in the country to advise those who have poultry or country produce generally to dispose of, or first contract for their sale before bringing any large quantities to town. The disappointments attending a failure to dispose of their produce, has caused much bitterness of feeling, especially with those who have been unable to sell at figures they considered reasonable, and consequently had to return with their loads unsold. We think this the better plan, and will save much dissatisfaction and loss of time. The grocers are not to blame for an over stock of country produce. It would be a loss to them to accumulate a stock of perishable goods greater than the demand by the consumer, consequently he is compelled to decline to purchase, and the farmer is put to considerable inconvenience and expense, which a previous understanding would prevent.

THE EDITOR AND COMPOSERS OF THE HERALD ARRIVED ON LAST SUNDAY, BY SPECIAL INVITATION, WITH MR. CLAUDE YAGER, ALSO OF THIS OFFICE, AT THE RESIDENCE OF HIS FATHER, MR. J. F. YAGER. THE DINNER WAS SUMPTUOUS AND REVERENT IN ALL ITS APPOINTMENTS. EVERYTHING IN THE WAY OF EDIBLES—meats, vegetables, fruits, pastry and confections were in profusion, and every care taken to make it enjoyable; and, as it was a typographical feast, and the fraternity are proverbial for jollity, their happiness on this occasion can better be conceived than explained; and in years to come, when the HERALD has grown to mammoth proportions, and its editor and composers rich as Croesus, we'll look down the dim vista of retreating years and recall that little gathering of printers with pleasure. Perhaps, it may be a sad, a very sad pleasure, as some of us, a hundred years from now, who have followed the golden rule through life, who have made a clear impression of their daily journal, and whose tale of life has been found free of errors by the Eternal Proof-reader of the Universe, may be looking in the radiance of celestial happiness, where the monotonous clink of type is hushed, and the sweet melody of angelic music is heard forever and forever.

First Barbecue of the Season.

There will be a Barbecue at Hines' Mill on Saturday, June 23rd, 1877. Ample arrangement will be made to entertain all that may attend. The dinner table will be supplied with all the edibles the market can afford. Good music will be furnished, where those of the temperate nature can enjoy themselves. A swing will be on the ground where those nerally inclined can take a revolutionary flight and alight without the slightest injury. Arrangements have been made for a large sofa fountain where those wishing the refreshing draught can regulate themselves. A show will also exhibit on that occasion, where the fun-loving million can have a sight. The Masonic fraternity will have a procession during the day. The candidates for the Senate and Legislature will be present and address their fellow-citizens on the political issues of the day. A hop will be given at night. Dinner, thirty-five cents. Do not miss this grand "cue."

Lost.

Between Hartford and Mrs. Peyton's farm, a GOLD THIMBLE, with my name engraved thereon. The finder will please return the same, and greatly oblige.

On last Wednesday Mr. E. Hubbard, plowing on the farm of Albert May, set out a fish hook in a small stream. He went back next morning to work, and about nine o'clock he went to see if he had caught any fish, when he found his hook gone. He looked a short distance off and saw a large night owl light on wax on his line. A new way to catch owls.

THE FOURTH OF JULY

That day to be celebrated by the Citizens of Hartford and Vicinity.

In this week's HERALD a call is made by the superintendents and other officers of the various Sunday-Schools throughout the county to celebrate the Fourth of July, in the way of a grand and imposing picnic, the place of assembling being the grove immediately below Mr. Remus Gibbons, at the lower edge of town. This call we heartily endorse, and hope that every citizen in the county will yield a cheerful and willing hand, and with the combined efforts of all we can have just such a celebration as was never before witnessed in the county. We trust this will prove a sufficient announcement to set each individual to work, and on the morning of the joyous Fourth let us go forth in all our grandeur and pride, and sing praises to God for his kindness in thus sparing us and giving us strength to take an active part.

IMPROVED CLIMAX REAPERS & MOWERS.

Farmers do not be deceived into buying an INFERIOR MACHINE at high prices, but examine the Climax prices before you buy.

The CLIMAX Machines are all COMBINED. Every Mower can be made a Reaper of.

Send for Descriptive Catalogue and Price List

GIBBS & STERRETT, Manuf'g Co., 31 Main Street, Louisville, Kentucky.

GIBBS & STERRETT MANUFACTURING CO. FRANKLIN, Simpson Co., Kentucky, Dec 25, 1876.

Gentlemen—We consider the Climax Mower and Reaper a first-class, practical machine doing its work well, with very little draft. I expect to buy another in time for next harvest. I used the Woods Self-Rake through the Harvest with the Climax, and found a vast difference in the draft amounting to at least one-third in favor of the Climax. The men also preferred to take up the grain after the Climax Reaper.

Respectfully yours, I. RILEY, P. J. BAILLEY, J. W. STILL, F. J. RILEY.

OLMSTEAD, Kentucky, January 8, 1877.

Gentlemen—We, the undersigned, having purchased the Climax Mower and Reaper, take pleasure in saying we are well pleased with its work in every respect, and would unhesitatingly recommend it as a combined machine over any in use in our vicinity.

I HEREBY CERTIFY THAT I CUT 61 ACRES IN THREE DAYS WITH TWO MALES.

GIBBS & STERRETT MANUFACTURING CO. Louisville, Ky.

Gentlemen—We, the undersigned, were appointed by the Logan County Council of the Patrons of Husbandry a committee to examine all reapers and mowers now in use, and to report which, in our judgment, was the best, and our reasons for recommending your machine were as follows: 1st.—It is by far the lightest draft. 2d.—It will mow in any kind of grass, wet or dry. 3d.—The portions of the machine most liable to wear are enclosed and thoroughly protected, so when worn, the oil cannot escape nor can dirt or grit get in. When necessary, in consequence of wear or in cutting grain, the motion of the sickle can be increased at the will of the driver, thereby insuring the cutting of all the grain, however thick or heavy.

GIBBS & STERRETT MANUFACTURING CO. Louisville, Ky.

Gentlemen—We, the undersigned, having witnessed the operation of the Climax Reaper, take great pleasure in testifying to the satisfactory manner in which it performed its work. We consider it a first-class machine in every respect, and in the raising and lowering of the cutter bar, we think it superior to any machine ever used by us.

J. M. ELLIS, J. R. ELLIS, J. B. DRANE, W. N. JONES, H. B. MORTON, W. T. HARRIS, S. THORN, WILLIAM DRANE.

We take the following from the columns of the Southern Agriculturalist:

BROTHER KEY: Permit me through the farmer's favorite paper, the Southern Agriculturalist, to tell you my experience with the Climax mowing and reaping machine. I purchased through the Grange Agency at Louisville, one of the Climax combined machines, and the raising outer-bar and real at once, besides an smooth and rough ground; it has stood stump ground as well as any other machine I appear to be as durable as any other reaper or mower. I am familiar with all the other machines, and I would not exchange my Climax for any of them. I write this for the benefit of the farmers, and without knowledge of the Climax machines.

JEN HARRIS, Master Glendale Grange.

GIBBS & STERRETT A CO: I have been using machines for twenty years, ever since the McCormick Reaper came out, and I know that the Climax is the best machine I ever used or ever saw. It is the lightest draft I ever used. The double motion, and the raising outer-bar and real at once, besides an smooth and rough ground; it has stood stump ground as well as any other machine I appear to be as durable as any other reaper or mower. I am familiar with all the other machines, and I would not exchange my Climax for any of them. I write this for the benefit of the farmers, and without knowledge of the Climax machines.

JOHN STEWART.

MARRIAGE BELLS.

Nuptials of Wm. J. E. Fogle to Miss Lela Addington.

A happy event, long expected, was today witnessed by a few of the elite of Hartford, in the marriage of J. E. Fogle to Miss Lela Addington, both of this place, by Rev. W. W. Cook, of the M. E. church.

This was not only a happy, but a most brilliant affair, and all of the surroundings seemed to lend a helping hand to make this an event long to be remembered by the people of Hartford.

Fair-handed Spring had unobscured every grace, and the feathered warblers sent forth their sweet notes from the flower-crowded boughs that surround the residence of the bride's father, where the ceremonies were performed, as if in congratulation of the happy pair, and in celebration of the event.

The bride is radiant, the leaves are green, on every stem the flower is seen; Now comes the humid breath and rainy mists, And with their sweet the willing eagle bleeds.

All was brightness, and life, and gaiety; the atmosphere seemed of an indelible purity and transparency; and while the birds sent forth their wonted madrigals, the gentle zephyrs, laden with the perfume of a thousand roses, kissed the vermilion lips of the lovely bride.

It was a saffron-robed morn, and the jovial sun was breaking glorious from the east, playing from the summit of the hills and sprinkling the flowers and foliage with a thousand dewy gems. The morn with its many beauties; the springtime of flowers and sunshine, forcibly, but agreeably reminded us that this happy pair, in the rosy morn and springtime of life, while the tendrils and flowers of youth are watered with the dew of the early morn of their lives, are entering life's pathway, pledging and promising in the sight of man and the presence of God, to love, cherish and protect each other until they shall be borne to the land where spring never ends, where dark clouds never come, and where "there are no marriages or giving in of marriages."

The bride is a blonde with laughing eyes, regular features, and modest, unassuming and lady-like in her bearing
